

The New York Tribune's The Gotham Weekly Gazette

PART VII.

SUNDAY, MAY 10, 1914.

Published Every Sunday.

LOCAL NEWS

Nap Rucker of Brooklyn was in town Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Fred Vanderbilt gave a luncheon Friday to a number of friends.

Thursday was an elegant day hereabouts after the rain of Tuesday and Wednesday.

Abe Erlanger the theatre man has started in playing golf, according to what Ren Wolf says.

Mrs. Victor Murdock of Wichita and Washington is contemplating to make a trip to Gotham in the near future.

The many friends of Frank Chance will be glad to learn that he is better of the la grippe which he had the fore part of the week.

Charlie Orth went to Princeton Thursday for the Tiger banquet, returning Friday. He took another flying trip there yesterday, returning, he plans, today.

Miss Marjory Stuart concludes to be married to Percy Hughes next month, after all. That is she is going to be married to him and that is the time agreed upon by all.

Julian Street is back from a trip which he has just taken from coast to coast and vice versa, where he and Wallace Morgan went to gather material for a certain weekly, which we are not going to mention because everybody would say O you do that because they are your biggest advertiser.

If we thought W. Bourke Cockran would write editorials for THE GAZETTE we don't know but we might offer him a job. He has the style we so much aim at in our poor flights.

Yes, we would like a New Haven correspondent, replying to that letter. Also from any town whence a man can send in good snappy items we to be the sole judge of their merit & snappiness.

Ralph Baggs the w. k. tennis player is being depicted in the movies now, he being one of some that are dancing at Vernon Castle's. Ralph is versatile all right, being quite a bowler too.

Harry G. Smith who we used to write about last year and 1912 is in need of a job and we will recommend him to anybody who needs an intelligent and honest young man. Communicate with us c/o THE GAZETTE.

George Wolfe Plank who drew Miss Simpson's portrait for THE GAZETTE sailed for Europe the celebrated continent yesterday. While there he will send us some pictures illustrating his peregrinations around.

WESTCHESTER WHISPERINGS

—Ed Henry, the genial ed. of the Pleasantville Compass, paid his usually fortnightly visit to Ossining on Wednesday, and made his annual promise to put up a plank shad feed for your correspondent, all of which your correspondent is pleased to record.

—Jack Rockefeller, of Pocantico Hills, has been receiving visits from the I Wont Work contingent lately, which is only another slant on being prosperous like Jack is.

—Ben Taylor, our popular congressman, has the thanks of your correspondent for an assortment of garden truck seed, which will come in handy if the weather ever comes around anything like being seasonable.

—Jack Chadeayne, Ossining's popular ex-alderman, is rusticating on his game preserves in the Adirondacks, and many mouths in Jack's old home town are watering for the trout Jack is going to send.

—What with a whole lot of things to do, your correspondent has not got much news this week, besides if he did, the versatile ed. would raze it, so it wouldn't be any use writing it anyway.

We heard many fine compliments and words of praise consisting of exclamations of approval of THE GAZETTE's new dress.
MANOR HALL.

ADVERTISEMENTS

"The Red Game of War," by Jack London.
A new baseball serial by Henry Beach Needham, together with other features in COLLIER'S, The National Weekly, May 16th.